

Music To Our Ears!

During August Michael Sanjurgo came to nursery for a music session with the children in Big Butterflies. Michael is a drummer and a member of a band. He introduced himself to the children and showed them the instruments he had brought along. He used a bongo drum, a small keyboard, whistles, castanets and a didgeridoo as well as all the many instruments we have in nursery.

Michael invited 9 children to the front to form a band and let them choose which instrument they wanted to play. On his countdown they all played their instrument it sounded really good and the children were just so excited and eager. Michael then gave them a drum solo which was just amazing, some of the children just couldn't sit still and without prompting just got up and started to dance to the beat! It really was a sight to see, the children had a ball.

Michael then performed more of his songs, what a fantastic afternoon we all had. Michael has very kindly offered to come again to play to us - we will look forward to that.
